Four Single Dahlias

Single Dahlias

Four Fine "Century" Dahlias $1.50

Each

- Scarlet Century. Unsurpassed in richness of color—a clear velvety scarlet. A most spectacular variety... $0.50
- Maroon Century. A beautiful soft rich red maroon flower, borne in profusion on fine, strong plants.... .50
- Flame Century. A delightful light flame color, with deeper markings..... .50
- Yellow Century. Fine soft clear yellow. Very free flowering..... .35

Outstanding Dahlias

The following Dahlias were outstanding at our gardens during the blooming season of 1943, some for their abundance of wonderful blooms, some for the flowers produced for bouquets and all for strong, healthy plant growth and vitality. Some are recent introductions, others are old but unsurpassed for their fine qualities.

DECORATIVES

Each

- Arelida Lloyd. ID. A huge, rich yellow Jane Cowl. The plant is strong and sturdy, medium tall and flowers very freely. Fine cut for bouquets..... $0.75

OUR GUARANTEE

Our Dahlias are all field-grown, well cultivated, carefully harvested, labeled and packed in ideal storage cellars during the Winter, thus assuring you of fine quality, true to name Dahlias.

Cultural Suggestions

Dahlias are very hardy and will grow under a large variety of conditions. There are, however, certain conditions under which they will grow best and attain their grandest perfection.

Planting should be done any time in May up to the first part of June. Prepare the garden well, dig holes 4 to 6 inches deep and lay the Dahlia root flat, partly fill in hole and scatter a small handful of a good Potato fertilizer around and rake in. The holes should be 2 to 4 feet apart, depending upon amount of space you have.

Select a place away from shade if possible, for Dahlias like lots of sunshine. Good drainage is also helpful.

Dahlias do not need much fertilizer, a little animal manure or commercial fertilizer spread over the ground and spaded in as for all garden plants is essential and very small amounts spread around the Dahlia from time to time is all that is needed.

Cultivate frequently during the growing season and add a small handful of fertilizer in a ring around each plant from time to time, raking it in well, several inches from the stalk. Fill in the hole little by little as you cultivate. If the season is extremely wet, it will be well to "hill" the now large plants. If the weather is extremely dry a good, heavy soaking once in ten days to two weeks will help, however, a light sprinkling is more harmful than good.

It is well to drive a stake by each hole before planting to support the Dahlia when it is large and heavy.

Insect pests are a nuisance with Dahlias as with nearly every other kind of flower plant, but they will often survive heavy infestations. Frequent spraying of poison for chewing insects will be helpful. Nicotine sprays for plant lice, although plant lice do not seem to hurt the plant much.

Digging should be done after frosts have killed the plants to the ground. Use a heavy spading fork, shake off surplus earth, cut stem an inch or two from the clump using heavy pruning shears or other suitable tool. Do not dry the clump, but pack clumps tightly together, upside down in a box and store in a cool moist place. Do not let them freeze.

TERMS

Orders close June 1st.

All orders are mailed free in the U. S. A.

Orders on hand will be mailed about May 10th, unless otherwise instructed. Orders after May 10th as received.

Add two or three Dahlias to your order for a second choice should we be sold out of some kinds.

We will in no case be responsible for a greater amount than the original purchase price.
